

The Miner.

TIED.

BY ROSE TERRY COOKE.

Lay down my head, dear, it's no use to cry—
My trouble is passed, I'm going to die;
The hill-path is over, I'm beat in the race,
For the wind of the world always blew in my face.

I'll daint me no more, but I mind how it blew,
I slipped and I fell, and I tried it anew;
But, fight you or flee, it's a desperate case
To climb up-hill with the wind in your face.

Sweet, sweet are the meadows, by river or rill,
Where the turf is all green and the weather is still;
But people can't all have the easiest place—
The wind must be blowing in somebody's face.

I'm tired of it, Mary! I'm glad to be gone,
You're tired without me, you won't be alone;
You have borne with my sorrows a wearisome space,
And the wind that dismayed me has blown in your face.

Good-bye, little Maidie, I never shall stand
In your sunshine, my darling, my rose of the land!
My trouble your bright head shall never abate—
The wind of the world never'll blow in your face.

Good-bye, dear, good-bye, I won't kiss you again,
I'm far out too weary to lengthen my pain.
Just cover me over; I'll lie in my place,
Till the wind is all quiet that blew in my face.

The heavenly sunshine will warm me up there,
No wild wind or tempest shall vex the soft air;
When the last sob is uttered, God grant me his grace,
To rest where the wind cannot blow in my face.

TELEGRAPHIC.

[Special to the Miner by United States and W. U. Lines.]

EASTERN.

New York, July 29.—The Trenton Banking Co., of Trenton, N. J., which lost $100,000 by Jay Cooke's failure, lose $100,000 by Duncan, Sherman & Co. The latter have lost heavily in Southern railroad and State bonds. J. B. Ford says their assets exceed their liabilities by over $80,000. The Christian Union is all right; Ford & Co.'s connection with it was simply as publishers of the paper. The statement that the Union has lost ground since the trial is untrue.

Denver, July 29.—Collins and Caley, two of the desperadoes who broke jail here yesterday, and nearly killing the keepers, have been captured.

Paris, July 29.—Many telegrams received from holders of Duncan, Sherman & Co.'s letters of credit in various parts of the continent, which have been discredited. It was rumored that English-American bankers would aid Duncan, Sherman & Co., and there was great disappointment when the report proved untrue.

London, July 29.—Direct cable stock is down in consequence of a report that an attempt at repair had been abandoned.

New York, July 30.—The director of the Mobile & Ohio R. R. says the firm of Duncan, Sherman & Co. undoubtedly lost by its connection with that road, but not enough to cause the failure. He thinks a large amount was sunk in the New York & Montreal R. R.

Philadelphia, July 30.—Wool in moderate demand; prices easier; for fine and medium, 28 and 31; extra coarse, 24 and 25; medium, 20 and 35; California coarse, 27 and 32.

Cincinnati, July 30.—A cyclone passed through Harvestburg, Fountain county, Ind., last Thursday night, tearing houses to pieces, uprooting trees and sweeping things generally. Five women were killed.

PACIFIC SLOPE.

Beaver, Utah, July 28.—After recess today, Isaac Riddle testified that Haight, at Cedar, at the time of massacre told witness he had better go home as trouble was apprehended with Indians.

William Roberts testified that in talking with Lee, at the massacre, Lee said what was done was by his orders. Prosecution here rested. Defense presented affidavits by telegraph of physicians in Salt Lake that Brigham Young and G. A. Smith were too feeble in health to come to Beaver, which caused a discussion on its admissibility. The court declared adjournment.

Court adjourned till to-morrow, at request of defense.

Second Dispatch.—Beaver, July 28.—After discovering to-day that Lee had prepared to break jail, orders were issued that no one should visit him in jail except his attorney. This eve Emma, one of his wives, and an English gipsy demanded admission to jail and the jailer refused, quoting his orders. The women made a disturbance, and finally assaulted the jailer with rocks, knocking him down. A warrant was issued and Emma lodged in jail. The state of affairs is such here that General Maxwell has ordered Lee into double irons. The state of the public pulse is anything but agreeable.

Beaver, Utah, July 29.—The first witness for the defense was Sam'l Pollock, who testified that he was within sight of the emigrants at the time of the massacre but did not see who fired the first volley, he being then momentarily out of sight. A moment afterwards he saw them, by running up a little knoll; saw a cloud of smoke and a number of Indians rushing on the emigrants.

William Young testified the same as Le did when sworn for the prosecution.

The defense offered to prove that the day before the massacre Lee besought Haight for God-sake to send back to Cedar reinforcements to protect the emigrants from the Indians. The Court ruled out the offer. The defense then offered to prove the declaration of Lee, and the Court ruled them out, and said the offers should be reduced to writing. The Court would not allow them to be made in the hearing of the jury, but ordering them on record.

Later—Letters are arriving constantly throwing light on the massacre. Information is received here to-night from Southern California of the whereabouts of the emigrants' hair taken at the massacre; also, of the jewels from their ears and necks, and the whereabouts of the men who took the hair and jewels.

Still later—Jesse N. Smith sworn: Live at Barrowan; was there in '97; sold Mountain Meadow emigrants flour and salt, and they wanted. They wanted vegetables and I did not have them. In August of that year I accompanied George A. Smith on a visit to the Southern settlements. He spoke against selling grain to the emigrants to feed stock, and discouraged all persons feeding bread or grain to horses. After the emigrants had been at Barrowan, Cal., Dame told me he had heard the Indians had attacked the emigrants. He sent me to find out. I went on and heard at Pinto that the emigrants had been at the Indians. I returned and reported to Dame.

Cross examination—Neither I nor Dame took steps to relieve the emigrants so besieged.

Silas S. Smith sworn: Live at Carogoonah. In August, 1857, I saw George A. Smith in Southern Utah. Visited the Southern settlements, and in preaching discouraged the use of grain to feed stock. The first knowledge I had of the Arkansas emigrants, Geo. A. Smith and I met them at Corn Creek, forty miles north of Beaver. They came to our camp.

Winnemucca, Nev., July 30.—M. Seigle, of the firm of Levy & Co., and Reinhardt, prominent merchants of this place, were today arrested for non-compliance with the Internal revenue.

Santa Barbara, July 30.—The jury took the Cotton case at 11:15 last night, and came in this morning: Verdict, "Murder in the first degree," and is to be imprisoned for life.

The trial of Mrs. Norton commenced this forenoon.

Since the jury rendered a verdict this morning, the friends of Norton, who are attending court, have determined to convict Mrs. Norton.

San Francisco, July 29.—Gold in New York 112. Greenbacks in San Francisco 88 1/2 and 89.

TERRITORIAL.

Florence, A. T., July 31.—A fancy, short-horned Durham bull has arrived on the Gila recently from the State of Kentucky, purchased by Mr. R. P. Saxe for Mr. Malony of Florence.

H. E. Laco, D. A. Bennett, Mr. Ewing and Mr. Curtis, capitalists of Tucson, arrived last evening, and left for the Pinal mines this morning.

A half-way house was erected last week between Florence and Pinal Camp. A good sized hotel, to be named "The Mansion House," will be erected near Pinal Camp next week. Deer hunting and the abundant supply of mountain water will be the Summer attractions.

Four new discoveries were made recently within four miles of the King, named Centennial, Prospect, Iron Clad, and De Armit. They are all rich in silver surface croppings, assaying from $400 to $1,000 per ton. One hundred miners are wanted.

An exchange says: "To what extent society has been insured by the monstrous and shameless system of sensation seeking to which the press of to-day is so freely given, it would be impossible to estimate, and any attempt to calculate it would be deemed incredible. This morbid thirst for the grotesque episodes and startling denouements of life is not only insatiable, but it knows no restraints or boundaries, and the privacy of home and the sanctity of the domestic circle are alike invaded with unblinking irreverence, by the pirates and freebooters of journalism, who live by this sort of work."

There is much truth in the above, as all will attest who are familiar with the journalism of the country. It would seem at times as if those sheets which are the caterers to that prurient taste which prompts weak-minded and misguided people to take delight in a cruel joke or witicism that inflicts pain and sometimes positive and permanent injury to a friend or an acquaintance, were destined to outstrip all competitors in point of popularity, but their prestige of success is so short-lived that they rise like a rocket and fall like a stick. Such, we have observed, has been the fate of every publication not based upon the broad foundation of a determination on the parts of its publisher to make it a vehicle of general public good, and not a mass of personalities, ridiculous or cruel, harmless or biting, as occasion may demand. The morbid taste which prevades certain classes gives encouragement to such journalism, but in a very little while it falls even upon those perverted appetites, and they turn from it with a feeling akin to nausea. It is the duty of every publisher to endeavor by every means in his power to elevate the tone of journalism, and when this is not the object aimed at, then his paper becomes a source of negative if not absolutely positive evil.
